

Ethel GILL 1884 - 1943

Ethel seems to have decided that John SQUIRE was the one for her, so she followed John to Adelaide, Australia. Their relationship may have been discouraged, because John's mother and Ethel's father were brother and sister, so the couple were first cousins. Although their home town was in the Dunster area of Somerset, Ethel's father William GILL moved to Bristol to marry, and John SQUIRE was undertaking his apprenticeship as a wheelwright in Bristol. We do not know what the family thought of the apparent relationship, but given they both left England, Ethel three years after John, they must have decided that making a start together in a new country was the best option. Ethel needed to have been very brave and strong to travel alone half way around the world.

The earliest ancestor I can be reasonably confident about is John GILL, born about 1755, who married Joan HAWKES in 1779, in Exton, not all that far from Dunster, the GILL homelands. I found three children, and the middle one, William GILL was born in 1781, in Selworthy, to the west of Minehead and Dunster.

William GILL married Mary WATTS in Dunster in 1805, and settled in Alcombe, near Dunster. They were probably in Staunton Cottage where GILL family members would remain for more than a century. William and Mary had eight children, the fifth being James GILL, born in 1811. An earlier James had died at thirteen days old, so there were hard times with which to cope.

James GILL married Mary CRAZE in 1835, in the parish church in Dunster, in the shadow of the great castle. They had nine children, the seventh being Emily GILL, soon to marry Isaac SQUIRE. However, our direct line is from the fifth child William GILL. Emily's older brother.

This William married Sophia COX in Bedminster, a suburb now of Bristol. This was probably Sophia's parish, and William moved there to bring his family into the world. They had eleven children, the ninth being Ethel GILL, born in 1884. John SQUIRE would have known his cousins from an early age, and his apprenticeship may have been facilitated by William in Bristol. John and Ethel had plenty of time to get to know each other.

The story continues in Adelaide and South Australia, as John SQUIRE embarks on a voyage to Adelaide and a new beginning in 1911, and Ethel follows in 1914. They married on the day Ethel arrived in Port Adelaide, and set up home together in Port Wakefield. The story continues in the SQUIRE narrative, written previously.
