

Rachel TREVORROW 1813 – 1912

Rachel TREVORROW's webpage is at: <https://jansquire.com/tng/getperson.php?personID=I4137&tree=squire>

Rachel TREVORROW had a quite varied life, from growing up in Cornwall, to emigrating to South Australia with her husband and eight children, living in Kapunda, and finally dying in Broken Hill in New South Wales. She was born in 1813 in St Ives, Cornwall, to Thomas TREVORROW and Mary POLMEAR. In 1836, she married Thomas WILLIAMS in Lelant, Cornwall, which is only a few miles to the south-east of St Ives. Together, they had eight children before emigrating to South Australia. Thomas, Rachel and family are mentioned in the 1841 and 1851 census in Cornwall, in Lelant and in St Erth, respectively, also not far from St Ives.

Thomas and Rachel arrived in Adelaide, South Australia, in 1857, on the ship 'Lady Ann'. Thomas is listed as a miner in the 1851 census, so it is unsurprising they settled in Kapunda. Thomas died in 1879 in Kapunda, and sometime after, Rachel moved to Broken Hill to live with (or be near) one of her children. She died there in 1912, just short of her 100th birthday.

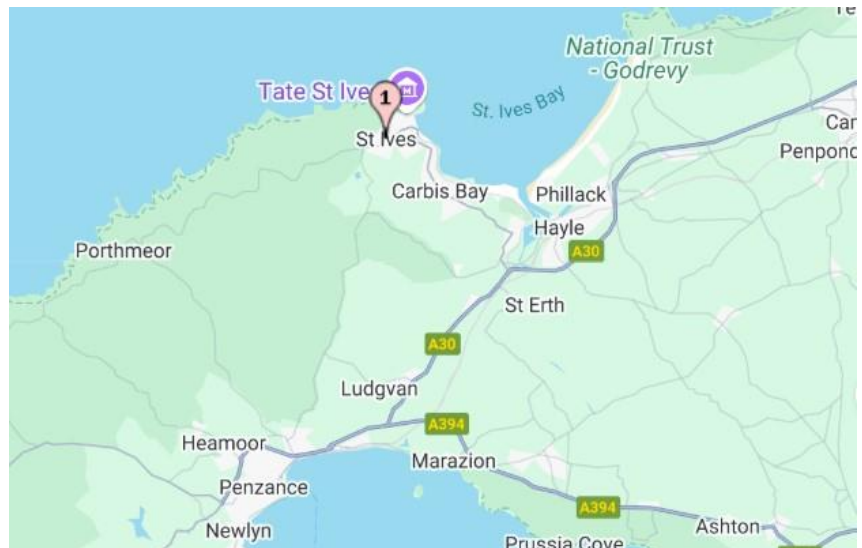

Origin of the Surname TREVORROW

Cornish: habitation name from Trevorrow in Ludgvan (Cornwall). The placename derives from Middle Cornish tre 'estate, farmstead' + probably an unrecorded Old Cornish personal name Gorvew corresponding to Old Welsh Gurbiu, though Morvew (Old Welsh Morbiu) is also possible, in either case with mutation of the initial consonant.

John TREVORROW b c1745

I do not know much about John, except that he married Mary FRANCIS in 1767, in St Ives, Cornwall. They had at least one child, Thomas, born in 1769, also in St Ives.

Thomas TEVORROW b1769

Thomas TREVORROW was born in 1769 in St Ives, Cornwall, to Thomas TREVORROW and Mary FRANCIS. He married Mary POLMEAR in 1792 in St Ives. Thomas and Mary had five children, the youngest being Rachel TREVORROW, born in 1813 in St Ives, Cornwall. There are too many possible records to be able to determine when Thomas died.

Rachel TREVORROW b1813

Rachel TREVORROW was born in 1813, in St Ives, Cornwall, and is the subject person of this narrative. She married Thomas WILLIAMS in 1836, and they had eight children in various places in Cornwall. They lived in St Erth at the 1841 census, and were in Lelant for the 1851 census. Lelant is just west of Hayle in the above map. Thomas is listed as a miner in the 1851 census, so he was probably finding it difficult to find work at this time. For whatever reason, the whole family left for South Australia in 1857, on the ship 'Lady Ann'. They settled in Kapunda, where Thomas would have worked as a miner till he retired and/or died. One or more children moved to Broken Hill, and Rachel moved there too. She died in 1912.

I have previously described and written a narrative of the WILLIAMS surname, and you can read that story here:

Rachel is Anne's great great great grandmother.

The WILLIAMS family are part of the MEINCKE/LANGDON family, and you can read their narrative at:
